

About our True Reality

What is reality?

For many, the perception we have of reality is that of a physical "time and space" reality; a reality governed by the laws of physics and a requirement for all that it contains to possess some form of physical characteristic i.e. that it is detectable and measurable in one way or another. But this has not always been the case.

Before science became the authority on defining our reality, the church was the authority on defining our reality. Based on religious beliefs and the level of awareness people had at that time, Earth was declared to be at the center of our universe and anyone saying anything different was guilty of blasphemy.

With a better awareness of our reality and the universe, we have of course since moved on. But is the level of awareness we currently have of our reality sufficient for us to form a final and ultimate true assessment of what our reality is?

Sure, we have certainly moved on from the days of intolerance and the narrow-minded views held by the church of the past - but is the intolerance and the narrow-minded views held by science these days, basically declaring anyone saying anything different to them, being guilty of "blasphemy", any better? (e.g. anyone daring to suggest that spirituality is a factual part of our reality).

What is the truth about our reality? Does not the fact, that for example the size of the universe being "endlessly big", tell us that there is something odd going on here?

How does the factual reality of an endlessly big; a never-ending space, fit in with our understanding of the physical reality in which we live, one in which everything, by definition of being physical, has to be "confined" to be something?

Should not the fact, that our physical reality (which is totally dependent on, and defined by, the laws of physics) existing in a universe which does not itself adhere to the laws of physics, tell us that there is something missing in our current understanding and awareness of the reality in which we live?

How can two seemingly incompatible realities coexist in one and the same reality? In other words, does not the fact that our physical reality actually exists in what best can be described as a non-physical reality, tell us that something is missing in our awareness of what actually is going on?

Surely, when we talk about our reality it has to encompass the whole truth about our reality, and not just what the flavor of ideology of the day happens to be (i.e. religion or science) and what that particular ideology favors as the truth.

For as long as we keep dividing our reality into two separate camps i.e. a spiritual reality and a physical reality, presided over by hard-lined ideologists, we will keep ourselves from ever reaching that higher level of insight and awareness which holds all the answers we are looking for.

Taking a closer look at what people in general believe about our reality, I am often told, when I ask people if they believe in God, that they do not believe in God. But when I then ask them, if that then means that there is nothing after life, they almost always change their response to something like "...Well, ...I don't actually think there is "nothing" after we die, it is just that I don't know what it is".

An interesting thing about this subconscious feeling, or inner knowing, of a "something else" (perhaps a God; perhaps a spiritual element of who we are) is that it can be found in every society on Earth; has existed for as long as humanity itself and that it spans all levels of societies, from tribes to so-called advanced civilizations. It is even a statistical fact that the majority of people on Earth believe that there is a God of some kind.

Even the famous physicist Albert Einstein gave expression for this invisible "something else" in some of his well known statements e.g.:

"That deep emotional conviction of the presence of a superior reasoning power, which is revealed in the incomprehensible universe, forms my idea of God."

"What separates me from most so-called atheists is a feeling of utter humility toward the unattainable secrets of the harmony of the cosmos."

What all this means, is that for most people there is a feeling of something more than what meets the eye is going on here. Take for example the simple and indisputable fact that the universe even exists at all! I would like you to take a moment to really think about this: ...Why does anything exist at all? And what brought it into existence? Indeed, what is existence?

The answers to all the questions we have been asking so far can be found in "The New Global Awareness".

"The New Global Awareness" represents a completely new subject area or category; a new philosophy and paradigm that looks at humanity and our reality from a holistic point of view and provides a comprehensive blueprint for the next step in our human evolution. It provides a new way of thinking.

It provides us with the wisdom to transcend and merge all our religions, belief systems and our sciences combined into one, so as to unify humanity in a universal awareness and knowledge about life and our true reality.

Based on scientific facts, logic and the new level of insight provided by "The New Global Awareness", it also answers some of the biggest and most difficult questions ever asked by humanity, including those asked by philosophers, theologians, astronomers, quantum physicists. Derived from the holistic insights that "The New Global Awareness" provides, we are now for the first time ever able to provide the following answers for the disciplines listed below:

Quantum Physics:

It provides an in-depth explanation of our true reality and explains the mystifying quantum-puzzling link between the object and the observer.

Neuroscience:

It gives factual evidence of the self i.e. the invisible or non-observable part of the equation of what it means to be alive.

General Science:

It defines the parameters of how far traditional science can go in explaining our physical reality and why. It then takes us way beyond the limitations of traditional science, using a scientific and logically sound approach to provide factual evidence of our extended true reality.

Modern Medicine:

It explains the mechanics of self healing and the underlying reasons of why it works.

Astronomy:

It explains our universe, defines its boundaries and gives us a whole new perception and way of understanding the concept of space.

Spirituality:

Using the same scientific method traditionally used by science, and without the reliance on religion or belief systems, it proves our spiritual reality, meaning our non-physical reality (or what some refer to as "God"). It lifts up our perception of the reality in which we live, to a whole new level of enlightenment bringing the world of spirituality into the world of everyday living.

Global Issues:

With so much inequality, intolerance, dividedness, self-centeredness, religious fanaticism, ego-driven politics and disconnectedness etc in the World, "The New Global Awareness" provides us with some clear answers as to why we are experiencing these issues and suggestions for what we can do to create a better world for us all.
